A TRADITIONAL CRAFT

The art of smoking food naturally over wood smoke. Used nowadays to enhance flavours and textures more than as a method of lengthy preservation.

THE ARTISANS

North Coast Smokehouse is owned and run by Ruairidh Morrison from the Scottish Isle of Islay and Melanie Brown from Ballycastle. They met in New Zealand, where they both lived for many years, and where they learned the craft of smoking food, before returning to these shores to raise their family.

INSPIRED BY SALMON

Ruairidh had worked with salmon for much of his life, managing salmon farms and working in fish pathology. He always had a notion he’d like to have a business smoking salmon. Enthusiastic friends and dinner guests encouraged him to believe his home-smoked salmon was worth selling.

When the couple decided to return from New Zealand they recognised the perfect opportunity to try something new on the North Coast. They wanted to start a business in the area that was connected to the landscape and the natural heritage of the place.

This coastline has a long history of salmon fishing, salt-making and seaweed harvesting. This is why smoked organic salmon, smoked sea-salt and smoked dulse flakes are North Coast Smokehouse’s flagship products.
